

County Semi-Final beckons for U12 Camogie team!

Kilbree's U12 camogie girls will play Castlelyons on Saturday next, in Castle Road (Blackrock) in the county semi-final. This has been a wonderful year to date, for this group of girls and their mentors. They played in an U12 Munster Blitz in Thurles in April. They played in an All-Ireland blitz in Croke Park in July. They now seek to qualify for an U12 county final against either Sarsfields or St Fanahans.

Many of these girls attended an open training session for the Cork Senior Camogie panel in Clonakilty, on Sunday last. Following the training session they met the players for autographs and photographs. The girls were delighted to meet their heroes. This group of Cork players are wonderful ambassadors for camogie. They are also great role models for all of the girls that were lucky to meet and chat with them. We wish Cork the very best of luck next Sunday in Croke Park.

U14 hurling

The U14C championship final was played in Ahiohill last Thursday evening. This contest was one between Kilbree and Clonakilty. Based on league form the Kilbree lads should have been slight favourites. Kilbree had most of the possession throughout the first half. They lead by six points to one with twenty minutes played. Two Clonakilty goals before half time served to be a crushing blow to Kilbree's title chances. The half time score was Clonakilty 2-3 to Kilbree's 0-6. Much of the second half was spent trying to restore this deficit. While Clonakilty only scored two points in the second half, Kilbree struggled to get back into the game. Missed chances by both sides meant both sides had to be content with a draw. The final score was Kilbree 0-11 to Clonakilty's 2-5. The replay is due to be played this week.
